

29 Utah National Parks Council Scouts Enroute to World Jamboree

A total of 29 Boy Scouts and Explorers plus three adult leaders of the Utah National Parks Council left Wednesday for pre-jamboree training at Fort Douglas reservation in Salt Lake City and will continue on to Farragut, Ida., for the 12th World Scout Jamboree.

At the 12th World Jamboree they will join 14,000 Scouts and leaders from Scout associations of almost 100 nations and territories to make the World Jamboree one of the free world's largest non-sectarian, non-military, international youth gatherings.

Arrival of the Utah National Parks Council's contingent at the World Jamboree is scheduled for Sunday. They will be at the jamboree site until Aug. 10. The World Jamboree itself is from Aug. 1-9.

First Time in U.S.

For the first time, the Boy Scouts of America is the host association to the world event. The 1967 jamboree will be a highlight of World Scouting's 60th anniversary year.

Each World Jamboree Scout or Explorer must be between 14 and 18 years of age and have demonstrated proficiency in camping, Scout spirit, be in good health, and be approved by his National Scout Association.

Selection in the Utah National Parks Council was made in the fall of 1966 by special selection committees of volunteer adult Scout leaders in each district or section of the council. The council's official delegation consists of 26 boys and three adults — a limit imposed on the council by the National and World Scouting Associations. Three other council Scouts will have special assignments at the jamboree.

These Scouts, mostly multilingual, will be assigned to the troops and patrols of other countries to assure them a happy and complete jamboree experience. James V.
